

Editorial

The ATBU JET (A'JET) Volume 9 Number 1 of June 2016 is here. The volume captures the position of distinguished researchers in the built environment covering: knowledge management practice on construction project performance in Nigeria by Dahiru. Managing conflict in the Nigerian construction industry was investigated by Molwus, Ewuga and Orih. Maina and Salihu assessed generic skills and competencies of Architecture graduates in Nigeria with a view to improving prospects for graduates in the future. Kado, Bala and Dandajeh present pareto analysis on the total quality management status of the Nigerian Design Firms which identified major factors responsible for poor performance of the firms. Adedayo, Oyetola, Offiah and Adebayo present Modular principles of flexibility of spaces in skill acquisition centres in Benue state, Nigeria. A comparative study of compressive strength of cement laterite brick produced with rice husk and wood ash as partial replacements of cement was carried out by Dahiru, Mamman and Usman. In a bid to ensure juvenile rehabilitation centres possess qualities that will enhance the rehabilitation process, Auwalu, Oluigbo and Sagada present inmates' perception of built environment in Borstal Training Institute, Ilorin, Nigeria. In similar but different attempt, Ogunbajo, Bello and Adebayo carried out assessment of urban infrastructure quality and user satisfaction in low income residential neighbourhoods in Minna of Niger State in Nigeria.

We wish our readers an impactful intellectual enterprise as you go smoothly through this edition of A'JET .

Y. O. Sadiq

Acknowledgments

We still envisage that a reputable external academic publisher might be found, sooner than later, to adjudge and assume publishing of A'JET. The intervention valve of Tertiary Education Trust Fund (Tetfund) is, on the other hand, now being turned on - thanks to information from the office of the Deputy Vice Chancellor (Academic matters), Prof. Abdullahi Umar.

Arc. Dr. Abdullahi Abubakar's complimentary review of the journal articles is herein again appreciated, as Arc. Prof. (Mrs.) Bogda Ogunsote and Dr. Adebenga Adeyemi are not left out.

We also respectfully thank our distinguished other reviewers, home and abroad, for their time and thoroughness.

The patience and promptness of African Journal Online (AJOL), our South African Partners, do spur us on, lending fulcrum to scholarship online!

Y. O. Sadiq