EDITORIAL

Dear Rwanda Journal Series B readers,

On behalf of the editorial Board, I wish to introduce you to this 4th Volume of Rwanda Journal Series B (RJSB). Credit should go to authors and patrons who through their submission of manuscripts have shown trust in the Journal. Credit should also go to the reviewers of submitted manuscripts and the hardworking editorial board.

Great tribute should go to Professor Kato J. Njunwa; who as the acting Director of Research, Innovation and Postgraduate Studies at University level has contributed to a high quality of research in all Series of Rwanda Journal. We wish him all the best in his endeavors.

Rwanda Journal Series B is an internationally peer reviewed which is uploaded on Africa Journals Online (AJOL) and each article published in RJSB is assigned a Digital Object Identifier (DOI) tagged with CrossRef. It is interesting to note that the RJSB, since its inception, is now receiving articles from several institutions of high learning both within and outside of the Country. This shows that the visibility of the Journal and the reputation has grown through the contribution of a number of lecturers-researchers in the domains of social sciences, economics, education, etc.

Dear readers enjoy reading the articles in this fourth Volume of RJSB. Potential authors are invited to submit articles for consideration for publication for Volume 5 since Volume 4 almost full and are in the process of editing.

I wish all contributors and readers a wonderful and productive New Year 2018.

Etienne Serupia Semuhoza

Chief Editor/RJSB
